Osaka, October 27, 2019 - Peach Aviation Limited (“Peach”; Representative Director and CEO: Shinichi Inoue) has set a new base at Narita Airport from the 2019 Winter Schedule starting today, Sunday, October 27. Aircraft will stay overnight at Narita airport to realize more flexible and proactive flight schedule, so that we can further expand our network from Narita Airport as Peach’s gateway of the Tokyo area. A group of pilots and cabin crews will be based in Narita airport, and Narita Operations Support Center will open on Friday, November 1 to support the operation and to smoothly promote business in the Region.

Today Peach has begun operations at Terminal 3, instead of Terminal 1, the place of which Peach had used since it started operation at Narita Airport on October 27, 2013. From today, all domestic and international Peach flights to and from Narita Airport will use Terminal 3, including our first international flight from Narita, Tokyo (Narita) to Kaohsiung and Tokyo (Narita) to Taipei (Taoyuan), which will inaugurate today.

Before starting the operation of the first flight from Terminal 3, which was the flight from Tokyo (Narita) to Osaka (Kansai), Peach staff, including CEO Inoue, handed out drinks and snacks to passengers to show their appreciation. At a following ceremony, CEO Inoue stated that “ ‘Flying train’ Peach will keep expanding its network from Narita Airport and offer much easier travel for people flying to and from Japan and other parts of Asia.”

Peach will continue to support affordable air travel for all and contribute to further regional revitalization as well as aiming to become the leading low cost carrier in Japan and the rest of Asia.
