Osaka, Peach Aviation Limited (hereafter, "Peach"; Representative Director and CEO: Takeaki Mori) today (April 22nd) opened its Sustainability Site to widely share its ideas and initiatives regarding sustainability.

Every year on April 22nd is Earth Day (a.k.a. International Mother Earth Day), a day to think about the earth and its environment. In addition to the CEO Message, the Sustainability Site launched today introduces its basic approaches to environment, diversity & inclusion (D&I), and regional revitalization, which are the three major themes for promoting Peach sustainability. The site also includes some examples of how we reduced environmental footprint by the introduction of Airbus A320neo and A321LR powered by new generation LEAP-1A engines. We will continue to update the Sustainability Site as a platform to share our ideas and goals regarding sustainability and activities based on them.

Takeaki Mori, Representative Director and CEO of Peach stated, "Peach's corporate philosophy is to 'serve as a bridge promoting the exchange of ideas, information and cultural understanding between people.' If we could allow anyone to travel freely and make it easier to interact with other people, it will encourage people to accept and respect one another. This is how we make our first step in fostering love among humanity. By revitalizing regions in Japan and Asia through the exchange of ideas, information and cultural understanding, we can achieve sustainable economic growth supported by the regions. Addressing environmental problems is fundamental to becoming a bridge for Asia through our fleet of aircraft. We are committed to finding and introducing new environmentally-friendly technologies and ways to serve our customers and realize sustainable air transportation and society."

Peach will continue to make further commitments to sustainability and communicate information. We will also work toward realizing a sustainable society in cooperation with various partners such as our group companies and local governments.
